Great – here is a short list that should go a long way:

- 3-5 years of fiscal year end financials for BlackJewell and Lexington (and any related entities that you contemplate would be party to loan agreements)
- Current interim financials for same (most recent quarter end with YTD and comparable to prior year)

- Any descriptive "decks" or other information that you have prepared on either company that would help paint the picture
- Summary of ownership for each company

This should be sufficient initially to allow me to have some meaningful discussions here at the bank.

Thank you!

Bob

Hi Jeff,

In speaking with our IT folks, it appears that certain data sharing services such as DropBox, Google Docs, etc. are automatically filtered by our security – in a nutshell, I can't use these services. There are also prohibitions on my ability to receive your confidential information (financial statements, reserve studies, etc) through a personal e-mail/data service.

So....maybe it would be easiest if I just provide a short list of things that I'll need initially to advance our discussions on BlackJewel and Lexington.

Are you ok with that approach?

So sorry for any inconvenience!!!

Bob

Just an FYI, I have not seen any invitation/notice for the data room. I can only assume that it is being "filtered" by our security. What data storage service/site are you using?

Thanks.

Good morning Jeff:

Following up from our conversations yesterday/this morning, I'm copying Jonathan Williams who is one of our senior private client advisors as well as his associate, Emily Trang – to make an initial introduction.

I had a nice conversation with Jonathan and he is very interested in formally meeting you and advancing discussions around asset management and credit.

To that end, I'm hoping to make a phone introduction today to the extent that you are available to do so. Jonathan is open until ~ 12:30 and then again after 3:00 this afternoon. Alternatively, we could certainly schedule a call for Monday if that fits better into your schedule.

Please let me know your preference.

Thank you again for this opportunity – we look forward to working with you.

Sincerely,

Bob

Dear Bryon and Eddie,

Could you please address the 2 final points referenced by Chris below? We cannot get this deal across the finish line until the credit evaluation is complete. Alternatively, as previously noted, it is our understanding that Javelin already has credit in place with JERA. Isn't there a way for Javelin to provide credit and you guys can settle up on the backend?

Joe,

I have added Kosuke Hosono of JERAT Credit to this email so he can ask questions directly.

As I mentioned to Bryon, JERAT credit group in Singapore is reviewing and I have asked them that we expedite.

I have heard a comment back from Legal that the CBR L/C contains more robust language so perhaps they will come back requesting that format.

As to credit provider, United is not as large as BBT but it may still be deemed sufficient given the size of the credit support for this transaction.

Other than that, Hoops has a lot of different companies and references Black Jewel in a presentation, but Lexington on our counterparty registration form. Admittedly I don't know all the various company relationships myself. I also recognize Hoops with Revelation. A better understanding of these various entities and their relationships would be helpful. If this could be provided, it certainly would be helpful in the approval process.

I also understand that with an L/C, we have bank credit but when our credit group asks for three year prior financials and mgmt profiles, just the L/C may not suffice. Blackjewel was recently formed but it didn't come from nowhere so consolidated historical financials would facilitate as well. We would be fine if Blackjewel wants JERAT to sign an NDA and show financials directly to JERAT credit staff.

Regards,

Chris

I believe the management profiles and historical financial information are in the packet. Audited Financial statements simply don't exist, as we are dealing with recently created entities, but we do have the LOC (similar to the one already in place). That should get you to where you need to be.

Bryon,
Thanks for your email.

I received from you a presentation on Black Jewel Marketing and Sales last week followed up by our standard counterparty registration form over the weekend. I appreciate you sending those over. I believe we are now only waiting on prior three year audited historical financials and management profiles. As your client is requesting Black Jewel be the guarantor, I believe this is the entity for which we require financial and mgmt. information. Once we have everything, I will have JERAT Credit Group review promptly.

Dear Clark,

At your earliest convenience, could you please pass this proposed consent along to Chris Savage for his review and approval? This proposed consent represents the collective input of CRE and LCC and both parties have signed off on the contents thereof. Hopefully, JERA will do so too.

Please let me know if you have any questions.

Thank you,
